POLITICAL.

The Shafiq-i-Hind (Lahore), of the 27th February, says that Anglo-Indian newspapers had represented Theebaw to be a very cruel and tyrannical prince and declared that Burmans would welcome British rule. But now it appears that their statements were grossly exaggerated and false. The palace executions which occurred in the ex-King's time were not committed by his order; and the disturbances that have broken out in Burma since his deposition are a sad commentary on the statement of the Anglo-Indian Press, that Burmans heartily desired the establishment of British rule in their country. Anglo-Indian newspapers are so ready to publish exaggerated accounts of irregularities that occur in other countries, but they are always silent about the misdeeds of their own countrymen. The Shafiq then refers to the complaint of the Mandalay correspondent of the London Times as to the military executions at Mandalay having been photographed under orders from the Provost Marshal and to the reticence of the Anglo-Indian Press on the subject. The Shafiq then discusses the question of the payment of the cost of the war, and is surprised that this country will have to pay the bill, while British traders and place-seekers will benefit by annexation. The newspaper charges Lord Dufferin's Government with extravagance. First a darbār was unnecessarily held at Rāwalpindī which cost 50 lakhs; then came the Delhi military spectacle on which 30 lakhs were spent; and now it remains to be seen what will be the actual expenditure of the Burma war.

The Rājputāna Gazette (Ajmere), of the 22nd February, says that the opinion of old natives that Englishmen are not now so just and merciful as before is quite correct. To say nothing of natives who are shot by Anglo-Indians like beasts of prey, even the Burmans are being treated with great severity, although it was necessary, on political grounds, to show special indulgence to them until the firm establishment of British rule in their country. Scores of Burmans are put to death almost every day on the charge of dacoity, but an act of unusual cruelty was committed by the Provost-Marshal and his assistant on the 15th January. The Gazette then describes the ill-treatment to which the two officers are said to have subjected a Burman with a view to extort confessions from him incriminating a Burman Minister, and hopes that the offending officers will be very severely punished for their misconduct.

Circulation,
415 copies.

The Nyāya Sudhā (Hardā), of the 24th February, says that news has been lately received from London to the effect that the new Liberal Ministry has decided to saddle the Indian treasury with the cost of the Burma expedition. Nothing could be more unfortunate than that a liberal-minded, experienced and impartial statesman like Mr. Gladstone has come to such an unjust decision. It was generally expected in this country that Mr. Gladstone's Government would not annex Burma, but would place another Burman prince on the throne at Mandalay and realize the expenditure of the war from him: but this hope has been defeated. Now it behoves the political associations here to make an appeal to Parliament in the matter.

The Rahbar-i-Hind (Lahore), of the 25th February, urges the employment of natives in the higher ranks of the public service in Upper Burma, especially as Government has decided to defray the cost of the war from the Indian treasury.

Suggested employment of natives in the higher ranks of the public service in Burma.

The Raft-i-Hind (Lahore), of the 27th February, says that Salar Jang, in his speech at the Nizám's birthday meeting, called the rendition of the Gwalior fortress to Mahárája Sindhia an act of justice and honesty, and observed that it occasioned great joy to native chiefs. When these words fell from his lips, it was generally expected by his audience that he would refer to the question of the restoration of Berar, but he refrained from all reference to the subject, although his meaning was quite apparent. If the restoration of the Gwalior fortress to Mahárája Sindhia is an act of justice and honesty and an occasion for joy to native princes, Lord Dufferin can judge for himself what sort of act the non-restitution of Berar is and with what feelings it is viewed by all feudatory India.

Salar Jang's speech at the Nizám's birthday meeting.

The same paper says that a good deal has been said and written on the loyalty of Native States and the distrust of the paramount power in them. But Salar Jang's speech on the occasion of the anniversary of the Nizám's birthday and Lord Dufferin's speech in the Legislative Council on the 4th January have lately thrown much light on the subject. The Hyderabad Prime Minister observed that he trusted that the Supreme Government would accept offers of aid by Native Chiefs.

in an emergency and would not allow their armies to eat the bread of idleness, and that the British flag was the national standard which all India respected. Now compare with this the thoughts expressed by the Viceroy regarding the Native States : His Excellency declared that the Government of India should not depend on its neighbours' good will and professions of amity, but on its own strength and valour !

The Akhbār-i-Ām (Lahore), of the 24th February, after quoting the sentence from the Viceroy's speech in the Legislative Council on the 4th January, to the effect that in erecting necessary defences on the frontier the Government of India would be merely following the example of other nations who do not allow their peace and security to depend on the good will and friendship of their neighbours, but on their own strength, observes that Lord Dufferin was not well advised in expressing such sentiments. What would be the result if native princes were to take their cue from his Lordship? They are asked to depend on the Government of India for their protection, while the Government itself has no faith in its neighbours! The sentence in question shows that Lord Dufferin is a very suspicious man.

GENERAL ADMINISTRATION.

The Hindustán (Kálákankar), of the 23rd February, says that the Hon'ble Vishwa Náth Náráyan Mandlik, C S. L., has been re-appointed an additional Member of the Supreme Legislature. There appears to be no good reason why the same man should be appointed over and over again. It would have been better if Mr. Dádábhái Noroji, Mr. K. T. Teling, Mr. P. M. Mihta, or Mr. Badru-l-din Taiabji, had been elevated to the Viceroy's Legislative Council on this occasion.

Hon'ble Mr. Mandlik to

The Najmu-l-Akhbār (Etāwah), of the 1st March, is surprised that, on the one hand, Government is desirous of reducing the public expenditure, while, on the other, it intends to increase the number of European officers in the regiments of native troops. The present complement of officers appears to be quite sufficient. However, if it is necessary to increase the number of officers, native officers, and not European officers, should be added, because an increase of the latter will involve considerable additional expenditure.

The Victoria Paper (Siálkot), of the 23rd February, says that at first Siálkot was placed under the jurisdiction of the Divisional Court at Amritsar. About three months ago a separate Divisional Court was established at Siálkot, to the great satisfaction of the people in the district. But now, owing to the press of work in the local Court, civil appeals from Daska, Pasrūr, and Raya in the district have been ordered to be filed in the Court at Gujranwalla, which will be abolished when the arrears in the Siálkot Court are cleared. The arrangement, though only temporary, will cause much unnecessary expense and inconvenience to the inhabitants of the three parganas in question. There have been no less than three changes during the last six months. When cases are transferred from one place to another, the suitors must engage new pleaders at the latter place, or take the pleaders, whom they have already engaged and paid at the former place, to the latter place by paying them their travelling expenses to prosecute their suits.

The Bahār-i-Hind (Agra), of the 27th February, says that

Income-tax and the Government servants.

Government servants, who have been brought under the operation of the Income Tax Act, will generally be able to recoup themselves by extorting illegal perquisites from the people, but the other classes will have to pay the tax to Government and also to give bribes to Government servants.

Circulation,
325 copies.

The Nasim-i-Agra, of the 28th February, endeavours to show how subordinate native officers extort bribes from the people in a variety of ways, and is surprised that Government has not yet taken any effectual measures to check the evil. Lately serious charges were brought against a civil officer, and an enquiry was made into his conduct. But in the end he was merely transferred to another place. Transfer is no punishment at all, but only affords increased opportunities to a corrupt officer for making money. Tahsildars and Munsifs make it a point to gain the good will of Collectors and Judges, and then they are able to rob the people with perfect impunity. The introduction of the income-tax will supply these dishonest officials with a new means of fleecing the people. They will purposely make improper assessments with the view of extorting bribes. Hence the people will generally have to pay two taxes, one to Government and the other to assessors. Considering this serious evil, Government had better revive the cotton import duties and increase the salt duty rather than introduce the income-tax.

Circulation,
600 copies.

The Sarosh-i-Benares, of the 24th February, in commenting on the Income Tax Act, observes that assessments will be made by Collectors and subordinate officers, while objections to assessments will be also heard by Collectors and appeals by Commissioners. This arrangement is very unsatisfactory. The Civil Courts should have been empowered to hear objections and appeals.

The Bhāratendu (Brindaban), for February, publishes a Hindi poem, in which the author complains that all industries in this country have been destroyed by English merchants; that natives are already groaning under the weight of taxation, but that Government has still decided to add to their burdens. Taxation was not so heavy even under Muhammadan rule, which is generally regarded as tyrannical and oppressive.

The Najmu-l-Akḥḥār (Etāwah), of the 24th February, referring to the rumour about the contemplated abolition of the Government Book Depôt at Allahabad, remarks that it is believed that a native press-owner has agreed to take over all the books in stock at 30 per cent. of their price, on condition that the copyright of educational books possessed by the Local Government is transferred to him. The maintenance of the Depôt was an unjust interference with private enterprise, and the Lieutenant-Governor is entitled to the gratitude of the public for its abolition. But the contemplated transfer of the copyright of books to one trader is very objectionable. The Curator of the Depôt allowed commission to book-sellers at 30 per cent. on the price of books; but the private trader to whom the copyright will be transferred is not likely to give them more than 10 per cent. as commission. The consequence of this will be that they will charge the public more than the fixed price of books. The Akḥḥār is of opinion that the educational books of which the copyright is held by Government should be allowed to be freely printed by the proprietors of private presses. Free competition would lead to the supply of good editions at moderate prices. In other provinces, such as Bengal and Bombay, educational books are freely printed and sold. Justice and education should be really made as cheap as possible. As regards the disposal of the stock of books in the Depôt, a notice should be widely circulated to the effect that books will be supplied at half price up to a fixed date. Such a reduction in the price would lead to the immediate sale of a large proportion, and those that remained unsold at the end of the period might be sold as waste paper. The sum realized in this way would not be less than that which has been offered for the entire stock by the trader in question.

The Rozānah (Lucknow), of the 2nd March, protests against the rumoured sale of the whole stock of books to one man, and suggests that the books should be divided in small lots and widely advertised for sale. If this proposal were adopted, the books would fetch better price, and a large number of press-owners would be benefited. The proprietor of the Roznāh is ready to purchase the entire editions of some educational books at 40 per cent of their price, if the copyright of the books be transferred to him.

The Sahifa-i-Qudsi (Delhi), of the 25th February, advertising to the books fixed for the Panjāb University Examination to be held in Panjāb University Examinations. Persian in 1887, remarks that the curriculum is rather excessive, especially as the books are difficult. Only the book, called the Persian Course, should be retained, but the other three books should be abolished, some good Persian grammar, like the Dastūr-i-Farsi Amāz, being introduced in their place. Moreover, the questions should be in vernacular and candidates be also allowed to answer them in vernacular. The Sahifa is then glad to state that the University has decided to appoint two Examiners instead of one in each subject in future, and to appoint Native Examiners more largely. But some more reforms are needed in this direction. Sometimes Englishmen who have recently arrived in this country and are not well acquainted with the capacity of the candidates are made Examiners; and the result is that, judging from the capacity of English students, they set difficult questions. Some Examiners get the answers of candidates examined by their friends and some give marks liberally to those candidates in whom they are interested in any way. In order to put a stop to these evils, the Examiners should be selected from among properly-qualified, experienced, and conscientious persons who have no connection with the schools of the province, and they should be paid adequately in order that they may do the work with care. Moreover, the names of examiners should not be published until the examinations are over.

A correspondent of the Koh-i-Nur (Lahore), of the 25th February, makes the following proposals for the consideration of the Education Conference which will be held at Lahore in April next.

Circulation,

First, Colleges are closed for two months and district schools for one month during the hot weather, but it is not known why no vacation is allowed to middle schools. Secondly, teachers employed in middle schools have no prospect of promotion like the teachers in district schools. It would be well if the former were also made eligible for District Inspectorships of Schools. Thirdly, middle school teachers are not entitled to pension. It is unjust to give no pension to men, who have spent the best part of their lives in the service of Government, for their support in old age.

The Reformer (Gurdáspur), of the 20th February, complains that an examination fee of Rs. 3 has been levied from each candidate for the Middle School Examination this year. The fee is rather high and presses severely on poorer classes. To the Reformer's knowledge, persons had to sell their things or to borrow in order to pay the fees for their sons. It is believed that the fee has been introduced in order to pay the large number of Examiners, there being no less than six Examiners in each subject. But there is really no need to appoint so many Examiners. One Examiner in each subject is quite sufficient.

The Musl-i-Hind (Delhi), of the 24th February, complains that a copy of the Panjáb Government Gazette in Urdu is supplied to each middle school in the Panjáb for the use of teachers and students, but that the teachers keep the Gazette to themselves and never show it to boys. Obviously their object is to prevent students from purchasing educational books which are advertised for sale in the Gazette. Moreover, they introduce books written by themselves in the schools.

The Kavivachan Sudhá (Benares), of the 22nd February, publishes a statement, compiled from the last Education Report, showing the entire number of Hindi and Urdu scholars in every district in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and is glad to remark that, although Government has imposed disabilities on Hindi students in the matter of employment in the public service, Hindi is much more popular than Urdu throughout the provinces, except some districts, such as Saháranpur, Muzaffarpur, Bijnor, Moradabad, Budaun, Bareilly, Pilibhít, Lucknow, Bara Banki, and Sultanpur, where the Muhammadan element prevails or where Muhammadan influence had been greater. In Cawnpore there are 8,042 Hindi students against 836 Urdu students. The total number of boys who receive instruction in Hindi in these provinces is 170,739 as compared with 89,076 Urdu scholars. These figures are very encouraging and should prevent the advocates of Hindi from despairing. If they continue their efforts for the encouragement of Hindi and have patience, Government will sooner or later see its mistake and change the Court language.

The Rafiq-i-Hind (Lahore), of the 27th February, says that the term of the two additional Judges in the Panjáb Chief Court will expire on the 1st April next. But as work has been steadily increasing in the Court, Government will probably have to make a permanent increase in the number of Judges. Moreover, Mr. Justice Barkley shortly goes on furlough and has no intention of returning. Thus there will be three vacancies in the Court. The Rafiq is of opinion that one of these vacancies should go to Mr. Roe to please the Civil Service, another to Mr. Rattigan to satisfy the European Bar and silence the Civil and Military Gazette, and the opportunity should be also taken to permanently elevate Pandit Rám Náráyan to the Court.

The Najmu-l-Akhbár (Etáwah), of the 1st March, thanks Government for the establishment of Establishment of six Government scholarships in England for native students, six Government scholarships tenable in England by native students, but regrets to say that, as scholarships have been placed at the disposal of the Indian Universities, these provinces will be left out in the cold, there being no separate University here. The Subodh Sindhu (Khandwá), of the 24th February, after giving a brief account of the London riots, observes that it is a matter of great surprise that in a rich country like England people have been obliged to commit such serious riots owing to starvation. Natives are really a very loyal and patient people. Although they do not get even one full meal during the day, and have no clothes to cover their bodies, no such outbreaks occur in this country. If natives ask for their rights in a constitutional way, European officers are ready to impugn their loyalty !

Natives have to thank their ill-luck for this.

A correspondent of the Sahífa-i-Qudsi (Delhi), of the 25th February, adverting to the practice of compulsory labour prevalent in this country, quotes some instances to show with what severity people are pressed into service by Government officers, and complains that the worst of it is that the men are not paid for their labour, even though a scale of wages has been fixed by Government. It is surprising that the British Government has spent millions sterling and much valuable blood in suppressing slave trade in Africa, while it tolerates such an objectionable system of impressment of labour in this country.

The Mulki Shuhda (Lahore), of the 20th February, complains that the Tahsildar at Lahore holds his Court at unusual hours to the great inconvenience of his subordinates, and abuses suitors in Court.

A local correspondent of the Qaisari (Jalandhar), of the 27th February, complains that at Jalandhar some officers and their subordinates are accustomed to abuse suitors and witnesses, have their beards pulled by chaprasis, and ill-treat them in other ways in open Court. Sometimes a plaintiff is sent out to call in his counsel, and then his suit is dismissed on the ground of his absence. Some officers have no fixed time for the receipt of petitions, and in some Courts sarishtadars themselves first hear suits.

A local correspondent of the Asdd (Lucknow), of the 23rd February, referring to the establishment of a Government tea-shop at Lucknow, where prepared tea is sold, does not see why Government desires to encourage the use of tea. Is it the object of Government to benefit tea-planters and to get access to the pockets of those people who are not addicted to the use of liquor or opium? The Local Government states in its circular regarding the establishment of tea-shops that the measure is intended to check the habit of drinking, which is becoming more popular among the native population every day! But does not the Local Government know that, in spite of the universal use of tea in Europe and America, the use of liquor prevails to a fearful extent there. To the writer's thinking, tea is not suited to the hot climate of this country. If the Local Government is so anxious to encourage its use, because it considers it to be conducive to health, it should first look to the water-supply of Lucknow, where the population

The Rafiq-i-Hind (Lahore), of the 27th February, in commenting upon affairs in Kashmir, urges that, as Diwan Anant Ram has been incapacitated for work by his long illness, he should be asked to resign the Prime Ministership, and a properly-qualified man should be at once appointed in his place. The Council of State at Jammu should be re-organized with a view to make it more representative. All the important districts, such as Kashmir, Ladakh, Gilgit, and Sharda, should be represented in the Council. A separate Council may be established at Kashmir, if possible. Moreover, the Maharaja should appoint a commission, formed of able State officers and some experienced natives of the Panjab, such as Sardar Muhammad Haiyat Khan and Babu Protul Chander Obas-tarji, Vakil of the Lahore Chief Court, to enquire into the working of each department and propose necessary reforms. If these measures were adopted, Kashmir would soon become a model Native State.

strangers whom mere love of pay has brought to Kashmir. The Diwan family are the old and faithful servants of the State, and they also enjoy the confidence of the Government of India. Hence His Highness cannot do better than to carry on the administration with their advice like his father and grand-father, and should not allow himself to be deceived by selfish strangers. Diwán Lachman Dás, governor of Kashmir, should be sent for to Jammu to assist Diwán Anant Rám in his work ; Diwán Lachman Dás should be succeeded in the Governorship by Diwán Gobind Sahái ; and Diwán Amar Náth or Diwán Lakhpát Rái should take Diwán Gobind Sahái's place. These arrangements should be only of a temporary character, the officers returning to their respective posts on Diwán Anant Rám's recovery. Diwán Lachman Dás' presence at Jammu would also tend to preserve union in the Royal Family. (The same paper publishes a picture in which a Bengali is represented as carrying a camel, called Kashmir, his own way, while an Englishman endeavours to pull the animal back by the tail.)

The Rekhtah (Dehli), of the 24th February, in an article

Sadiq Hasan, Bhopal.

communicated by one Inayat Ahmad

at Sihor, says that the sect who call themselves Abl-i-Hadis, are really Wahábis. Sadiq Hasan, who belongs to this class, collected a large number of Wahábis around him and published seditious books about ten years ago, which were circulated both in this country and Turkey and Arabia. In his book, entitled the Hidáyatu-l-salil, printed at the Sulaimáni Press, Bhopal, in 1292 Hijra, pages 90 to 103, he called Englishmen a Satanic and uncleanly people and strongly urged upon Indian Musalmáns the declaration of jihad against Government. General Daley made an enquiry into the subject, and the Commissioner of Thagi and Dakaiti was ordered by the Supreme Government to keep an eye on the Wahábis. Sadiq Hasan, seeing that the suspicions of Government had been aroused, changed front and published other books repudiating his old views. His friends, who were in his pay, also published books in his praise and in condemnation of Wahábism. In his book, called the Tarjumán-i-Wahábiah, which was printed at the Muslím-i-Am Press, Agra, in 1300 Hijra, he repudiates the Wahábi doctrines, condemns the declaration of jihad against Government as unlawful, and charges the Hanafi or Sunni Musalmáns with instigating the mutiny. The writer has reason to think that the newspapers which have taken up the cudgels for him in connection with his degradation are directly or indirectly subsidised by him, and observes that these misguided newspapers are really injuring him and bringing the native press into contempt. The Panjabi Akhbar (Lahore), of the 27th February, says that it appears from some newspapers that the Udaipur Darbar has issued orders to the effect that if an half-educated physician treats a sick person, he shall be fined Rs. 100 and the latter Rs. 25. The Akhbar is surprised at the issue of such orders, and observes that the Darbar should have made arrangements for the education and examination of physicians before introducing the restriction. Even in British India, where doctors receive regular training, Government has not yet deemed it expedient to impose any restrictions on the practice of medicine.

The Oudh Akhbar (Lucknow), of the 1st March, in commenting upon the same subject, approves of the prohibition of the practice of medicine by half-educated physicians, but observes that the Darbar should provide a sufficient number of competent physicians ; otherwise the remedy will prove worse than the disease. It is well known that doctors do not treat natives carefully, that English medicines are generally strong, and that therefore, if improper medicines are administered, they do much harm. Moreover, Hindus object to take English medicines, especially those which contain spirituous liquor. Hence the people would be much dissatisfied if they were compelled to place themselves under the treatment of doctors.

They have to travel 15 or 20 miles during the day at all the seasons of the year. Even ordinary labourers have a larger income. The worst of it is that post messengers have often to give something to overseers at the time of receipt of their pay. Exclusion of native ladies from Ladies' Waiting-room at Allahabad.

24th February, says that a respectable Musalman of Lucknow, on his way to Calcutta, arrived at the railway station at Allahabad on the morning of the 20th February. As the train was to stay there for one and a half hours, and the carriages also were to be changed, he desired to put his women, who accompanied him, into the Ladies' Waiting-room. But the Station Master told him to take them to the shed intended for the use of third-class native passengers. The invidious distinction made between European and Native passengers travelling in the same class is very objectionable and tends to prevent the growth of mutual sympathy. The Akhbār, in commenting upon the above incident, complains that natives are subjected to much humiliation in railway travel. Nothing could be more unreasonable than to assign a separate waiting-room to European ladies, who are accustomed to appear in public, but to require native ladies, who live behind the screen, to wait in the ordinary shed.

The Mulla Dopidza (Lahore), of the 22nd February, complains of the alleged increase of crime at Lahore, charges the City Inspector of Police with inexperience and incapacity, and urges his transfer.

The Khair Khwáh-i-Kashmír (Lahore), of the 25th February, says that the attacks made by the Muhammadan newspapers of Lahore on Sardár Amar Singh, Inspector of Police, are due to prejudice, and that crime does not prevail at Lahore in any unusual degree. The Sardár's connection with the city dates from 1883. No case of murder occurred in that year. In 1884 one murder was committed, but the culprits were brought to justice. Last year there were three cases of murder, in the first of which the offender was not discovered, but in the second four persons were arrested by the police, but they were acquitted by the Sessions Judge, and in the third the murderer was convicted and punished. Two women have lately been killed, and the police are endeavouring to detect the culprits. The occurrence of these murders in a large city like Lahore within the last three years cannot be considered unusual. (A local correspondent of the Akhbār-i-Am, Lahore, of the 27th February, condemns the attacks made on the Inspector of Police as unjust).

The Asfāb-i-Hind (Jallandhar), of the 27th February, on the authority of a local correspondent, complains that there are houses of ill-fame at Jallandhar, and urges that, if the complaint is well founded, measures should be taken to suppress the evil with a strong hand.

A local correspondent of the Almora Akhbār, of the 22nd February, complains that there are some professional gamblers at Almora who entice strangers to gaming by false pretexts and cheat them of their money. The police should see to this.

Circulation,
106 copies.

The Almora Akhbār, of the 22nd February, asks Hindus to go to England to complete their education there, and argues that the voyage is not opposed to the Hindu religion. (The Mitra Vilās, Lahore, of the 22nd February, states that Rāo Kanhyā Lāl has sent his son, Lālā Sewā Rām, B. A., to England to become a Barrister-at-Law.)

Circulation,
106 copies.

The Prayāg Samāchār (Allahabad), of the 24th February, complains that the metalled road lying under the Fort at Allahabad is in a most neglected condition, and that the visitors to the Māgh Mela were exposed to much inconvenience in consequence.

Circulation,
